FEW CHANGES IN FINAL RESULTS

Pluralities and Majorities the Only Things Affected. Brodbeck and Hoke Chosen with Comfortable Leads. Other Totals.

The complete returns of Tuesday's election from Franklin and York counties show no change over the majorities expected for Mr. Hoke, State Senate, and A. R. Brodbeck, Congress.

Mr. Hoke carried Franklin county by 1198 while Hon. W. A. Martin had a lead of 773 here, giving his opponent a majority of 420 in the district.

Mr. Brodbeck had a lead of 1807 over Mr. Lafean in York county while his plurality here was 462, a total lead of 2299. Mr. Bair, the Washington party candidate, received 662 votes here and 2397 in York county.

With the returns indicating the election of A. R. Brodbeck, Democratic candidate in the Twentieth Pennsylvania congressional district on election night, Congressman D. F. Lafean sent the following telegram to Mr. Brodbeck at his home in Hanover:

Congratulations on your election and best wishes for a successful term.

D. F. LAFEAN.

Congressman Lafean received the following reply:

Accept my appreciation for your cordial greeting.

A. R. BRODBECK.

For the state officers the total vote of the county without that received in Butler township has been computed and this one district does not change matters materially. The totals in the unofficial account are as follows:

STATE TREASURER
Berry, D.	3426
Young, R.	2978
AUDITOR GENERAL
Creswell, D.	3427
Powell, R.	2995
CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE
Greenwalt, D.	3382
Shaw, D.	3374
McLean, D.	3366
Howley, D.	3363
Lewis, R.	2877
Walters, R.	2869
Rupley, R.	2866
Morin, R.	2743

The official count will be made within the next few days but the majorities and pluralities are so large that any change of material change is most remote.

SCULPTOR HAS FINISHED MODEL

Group of Figures for Handsome Virginia Monumet on Gettysburg Battlefield is Ready for Casting.

F. W. Sievers, the sculptor, who was commissioned by the State of Virginia to design the figures which are to form part of the monument by the state to her dead at Gettysburg, and which is to be unveiled next July, the fiftieth anniversary of the battle, has completed the model. The monument is to be surmounted with a large figure of Gen. Robert E. Lee, seated on a horse, his favorite old horse.

At the base of the monument will be a group, the work of Artist Sievers, which depicts the followers of the lost cause in the closing days of the struggle. In the center is seated a young cavalry officer, carrying the flag of the state, on which is a seal of the old Dominion. Strwn on the ground are the remnants of cannon and broken wheels. To the left are to be seen an infantryman on the march, another infantryman engaged in biting off a cartridge for his rifle, while an artilleryman is shown in action at close range, firing with a heavy revolver. To the right is seen an infantryman clubbing his rifle and repelling an attack, with a second double-quick to the front, while on the extreme right stands a young bugler sounding a charge.

Critics who have been permitted to visit the studio of Mr. Sievers assert that it is a remarkable piece of work and that it is one which will attract attention and place him in the ranks of the foremost sculptors of the world. Mr. Sievers is a native of Richmond.

Virginia has made arrangements to have the survivors of Pickett's division participate in the anniversary next year, providing the money to pay the way of those who cannot afford to make the trip. The Pickett men will be the guests of the Philadelphia Brigade Association at the ceremonies.

SHELLS CORN

With an Automobile. Cumberland County Farmer's Invention.

Thomas A. Carothers, a farmer of Dickinson township, Cumberland county, is nothing if not enterprising and to him must be given the credit for putting the automobile to a new use. Mr. Carothers wanted power to run his corn sheller, so he conceived the idea of removing the tire of a rear wheel of his automobile, putting a strap on the wheel and operating the sheller. He jacked up the machine, turned on a little power, and the thing worked like a charm. Now Mr. Carothers will run other farm machinery in the same way.

STUDENTS TALK OF TOWN BOYS

Speak of Hallow'en Trouble. Declare Some Actions to be Semi-Barbarous. Trouble from "Rougher Element".

The Weekly Gettysburgian, the college students' paper takes occasion this week to speak editorially of the treatment accorded the student section of the Hallow'en parade, saying:

"All went well until the parade was over and the college band was on its way out to the campus. Then a number of the rougher element of town gathered at the Reading depot and jostled the band men as they marched in rank and also showed their ill will by their remarks. The town officers were obliged to hold the crowd in check until the students reached the college gates after which the crowd came out and endeavored to start a fight. Fortunately the students showed excellent common sense and paid little attention to the blustering trouble hunters. It is indeed a pity that the students can't take part in such pleasant celebrations without incurring the senseless ill-will of a certain class of Gettysburg's population. This hostility towards students in general is a remnant of a semi-barbarous age and should be laid aside by those who make any claim to civilization."

The "Gettysburgian" also takes occasion to flay without much mercy the conduct of the foot ball team at Muhlenberg when, it is said, they simply "laid down" and put forth no effort to make a creditable showing.

"The men were well trained," says the editorial, "but before that crucial hour was past they displayed a brand of foot ball such as would disgrace the most unimportant high school which ever collected eleven children and called it a foot ball team. It seems to us that there is no genuine devotion to the college to be found in the make-up of our foot ball team."

STRONG SHOW

Servant in the House Coming to Wizard Theatre Next Week.

Only a cast of exceptionally intellectual players trained in the hard school of experience could do justice to the difficult roles in "The Servant in the House," the sensational success and epoch-making play which is to be presented at the Wizard Theatre on Tuesday, Nov. 12. Only players capable of assuming difficult roles can meet with any success in the play. It is a remarkable company which Merle H. Norton is sending to this city for the presentation of this drama, a company headed by Victor E. Lambert and which includes no less than three players who have been stars in their own right. —advertisement.

T. R. MARGIN IN PENNA. 25,000

Missing Districts Are Expected to Increase It.

DEMOCRATS MADE GAINS

Get a Few More Congressmen and Elect Greater Number of Legislators.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—Colonel Roosevelt carried Pennsylvania for the Presidency in Tuesday's election by at least 25,000 plurality and the figures may reach 30,000.

Returns from 4838 election districts out of 6593 in the state, including Philadelphia, give these results:

Taft 229,087
Wilson 306,937
Roosevelt 326,478

Among the missing districts are more than 200 in Allegheny county, which are expected to increase the Roosevelt plurality.

The Republican state ticket, which was endorsed by the Washington party, headed by Robert K. Young and A. W. Powell, won by an even larger vote than the Progressive presidential candidate.

The Republicans elected their four congressmen-at-large. They are John M. Morin, F. E. Lewis, A. H. Walters and A. R. Rupley.

Among the more notable changes was the defeat of Daniel F. Lefan, for five terms Republican congressman from the York district. He was defeated by A. R. Brodbeck, his Democratic opponent. W. B. Wilson, a labor leader, lost out in the Fifteenth district. General William J. Hollings, a former National Guard official, carried the Twenty-eighth district.

The Democrats gained in the legislature, the Socialists losing their only seat through the defeat of J. H. Maurer, of Reading.

Roosevelt suffered losses in counties where his vote was expected to be overwhelming. Lackawanna county was regarded as the citadel of the Progressives, but Wilson was much stronger than was supposed. The miners voted almost solidly for the colonel, but Wilson received large support from workmen in other industries in the coal belt counties.

President Taft carried Philadelphia by a plurality of 9520 over Roosevelt and by a plurality of 25,268 over President-elect Wilson. The official count may make some changes in the totals.

In brief the results in Philadelphia were:

President Taft carried the city. The Flinn-Roosevelt state ticket and congressmen-at-large carried the city.

Four Republican congressmen were elected from as many city districts.

Two Democratic district congressmen were elected.

Four Republican state senators were elected.

One Democratic state senator was elected.

Thirty Republican state representatives were elected.

Eight Washington state representatives were elected.

Three Democratic state representatives were elected.

The $7,000,000 loan bill was probably passed.

One Democratic select councilman was elected.

Three Republican select councilmen were elected.

One Washington select councilman was elected.

One Democratic common councilman was elected.

Three Republican common councilmen were elected.

Congressman "Ben" Focht Defeated. Middleburg, Pa., Nov. 7.—Frank Dershem, Democrat-Keystone, of Union county, defeated Congressman B. K. Focht in the Seventeenth district by about 300 majority.

OHIO STRONG FOR WILSON

Taft Failed to Carry His Home County in Landslide.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 7.—Not in fifty years has Ohio given to the Democrats so stupendous a majority as that polled on Tuesday.

Returns from 2057 precincts out of 5265 in Ohio gave Wilson 159,155; Taft, 105,182, and Roosevelt, 73,907. If Wilson maintains the same lead in the remaining precincts his plurality over Taft will be about 115,000 and Taft's plurality over Roosevelt will be about 80,000.

Congressman Cox, governor-elect, will win with an equal majority over General R. B. Brown, the Republican candidate, and Garford, the Progressive candidate, will poll about 60,000. So completely did Wilson, at the head of the national ticket, and Congressman James M. Cox, the candidate for governor, snow their opponents under in this, the home state of President Taft, that the president even lost his home county.

The Democrats are supreme in power in all the state offices, both branches of the general assembly and have elected a majority of the congressmen, including the first congressman at large to be elected in Ohio. Of the twenty-one congressional districts in Ohio but five are Republicans, the rest Democrats. Congressman Nicholas Longworth, son-in-law of Colonel Roosevelt, has been returned to congress by a majority of about 1000.

RHODE ISLAND DEMOCRATIC

For First Time Since Civil War Defeats Republican Column.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 7.—The complete vote in Rhode Island gives Wilson for president a plurality of 2494 and Governor Aram J. Pothier, Republican, a plurality of 1991.

The state becomes Democratic for the first time in a national election since the Civil War. All Republican general officers were elected.

The vote for president was: Wilson, 29,197; Taft, 27,706; Roosevelt, 16,442.

The general assembly is regarded as probably Democratic. The election of two Democratic congressmen, George F. O'Shaughnessy and Peter Goette Gerry, and one Republican, Colonel Ambrose Kennedy, is believed to be assured.

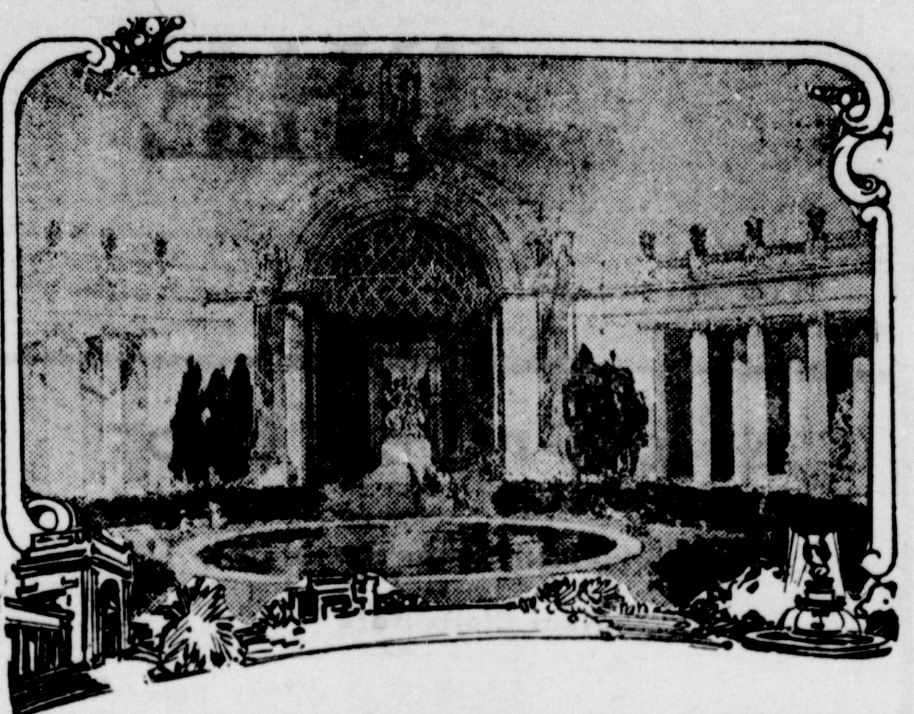

Wilson Has Tennessee. Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 7.—Wilson has carried Tennessee by 29,000 plurality. Roosevelt is second. Z. D. Massey, Bull Moose, is favored by the early returns for congress in the First district over Congressman Sells, Republican. B. W. Hooper, fusion candidate for governor, was re-elected by 15,000 majority.

Idaho Goes For Taft. Boise, Idaho, Nov. 7.—The returns show that Taft has carried the state by 8000, and that the legislature will be safely Republican on joint ballot, thus assuring the election of two Republican United States senators.

For aphs on sweet peas, use insect powder or tobacco dust, applying with a small bellows.

Corn and alfalfa usually can be attended to when the wheat needs no care, thus distributing the labor more equitably throughout the season.

If lice and mites fail to pay enough attention to other treatments, try burning them out with a torch. But don't burn down the house in order to get the vermin.

NICHE IN THE COURT OF THE FOUR SEASONS, PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

EACH of the four corners of the Court of Four Seasons will be adorned with groups of statuary symbolical of the seasons—Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter. The sculpture will be set in niches screened by colonnades and mural paintings, also suggestive of the seasons, will form the background for the setting. The Court of Four Seasons will be 340 feet square. Mr. Jules Guerlin, the noted artist, has charge of the color plan, and the designer of the court is Mr. Henry Bacon of New York.

WILSON ASSURES HONEST BUSINESS
Says "Wholesome Enterprises" Need Not Fear.
GOVERNOR UNTIL MARCH 3

Declares He Intends to Put Through Jersey Legislature Some Much Needed Reforms Before Resigning.
Princeton, N. J., Nov. 7.—"I can't realize that it's true," Woodrow Wilson, president-elect, thus greeted visitors who swarmed to his house to offer congratulations. Among them were many members of the Princeton faculty.
"I can't realize that it's true," repeated the governor. "It hasn't quite dawned on me. I had been in an impersonal atmosphere for the last three months, reading about myself, reading that I was to be elected, and now I can hardly believe that it's true."
Later the president-elect gave out this signed statement:
"The result fills me with the hope that the thoughtful progressive forces of the nation may now at last unite to give the country freedom of enterprise and private influences, devoted to justice and progress. There is absolutely nothing for the honest and enlightened business men of the country to fear."
"No man whose business is conducted without violation of the rights of free competition and without such private understandings and secret alliances as violate the principle of our law and the policy of all wholesome commerce and enterprise need fear either interference or embarrassment from the administration. Our hope and purpose is now to bring all the free forces of the nation into active and intelligent co-operation and to give to our prosperity a freshness and spirit and a confidence such as it has not had in our time."
"The responsibilities of the task are tremendous, but they are common responsibilities which all leaders of action and opinion must share. And with the confidence of the people behind us everything that is right is possible. My own ambition will be more than satisfied if I may be permitted to be the frank spokesman of the nation's thoughtful purpose in these great matters."
The president-elect said he felt somewhat weary, the sense of strain having been relieved by the result of the election, but that the rigor of the campaign had affected him more than he realized.
Questions as to any possible make-up of his cabinet were smilingly waived aside, but the next chief executive of the nation did say that he had no idea as yet of calling a special session of congress. "I am not a fair trigger kind of man," he declared with a smile. "I feel very tired and sleepy right now, and it will take me several days to regain my normal condition. I will probably remain in Princeton for the next two weeks or more catching up with an infinite amount of work that is ahead of me. There are a thousand and one details that must be attended to, and I can see where I will be kept busy for eighteen hours a day for the next month or so."
The president-elect sent the following to Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay:
"My sincerest thanks for your kind message. Pray accept my cordial good wishes."
To President Taft at Washington he wired:
"I warmly appreciate your kind message and wish to express my sincere personal regards."
The president-elect stated emphatically that he would not resign as governor of New Jersey until March 3, and intimated that with a Democratic house and senate in New Jersey he intended to put through some much-needed reform measures before giving up his present office.

VERMONT STANUS BY TAFT
Apparently Only New England State in Republican Column.
White River Junction, Vt., Nov. 7.—President Taft was the winner in Vermont by a plurality of 924 over Colonel Roosevelt. Mr. Taft received a total of 23,247 votes; Colonel Roosevelt, 22,323, and Governor Wilson, 15,397.
An analysis of the returns shows that Colonel Roosevelt received the largest support in the farming districts, where President Taft's Canadian reciprocity policy was said to be unpopular. The cities and towns contributed heavily to Mr. Taft's vote.
Wilson Carried Maryland by 54,600.
Baltimore, Md., Nov. 7.—Woodrow Wilson has carried Maryland, including Baltimore city, by a plurality of 54,600. Roosevelt runs second and Taft third. The entire Maryland delegation in congress will be Democratic. The total vote in the state for Wilson is 112,122; for Roosevelt, 57,679, and for Taft 54,643.
Insane Man Shoots Two.
Alstead, N. H., Nov. 7.—Frank Kidder, an insane man, shot and probably fatally wounded his aged aunt, Miss Mary Richardson; injured Martin L. Richardson and committed suicide. Richardson, who was shot four times but not seriously wounded, was elected by the Democrats to the legislature on Tuesday.

Joe Cannon Defeated
Ex-Speaker Loses Seat in Congress by 611 Plurality.
Danville, Ill., Nov. 7.—Frank J. O'Hair, Democrat, is victor over former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon in Congress in the Eighteenth district by 611 plurality.
Vermilion county gave Cannon 718 plurality and Kankakee 544 plurality. Edgar county gave O'Hair 1073 plurality; Clark, 300 (estimated); Cumberland, 40, and Iroquois, 100 plurality.

A chicken takes naturally to having feed handed it, but the turkey is almost self-supporting until cold weather.
Turkeys always find a ready sale and are almost clear profit. There is always a demand. The market is never glutted.
The little chicks do best on corn bread made of sour milk, soda and cracked corn. They should be fed on something clean.

A nation-wide movement for the prevention of waste would do more than a nation-wide revival of industry.
More Serious Loss.
The train puffied cityward from the summer resort.
"You look downcast," said the first summer girl. "Have you left your heart behind?"
"Left my best parcel!" snapped the second summer girl, with a frown.

TAFT WARNS G. O. P. TO MAKE REFORMS
Glad Government Did Not Fall Into Hands of Third Party.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 7.—President Taft has issued the following statement upon the result of the election:
"The returns insure the election of Governor Wilson to the presidency. This means an early change in the economic policy of the government in reference to the tariff. If this change can be made without halting prosperity I sincerely hope it may be."
The vote for Mr. Roosevelt, the third party candidate, and for Mr. Debs, the Socialist candidate, is warning that their propaganda in favor of fundamental changes in our constitutional representative government has formidable support. While the experiment of a change in the tariff is being carried out by the Democratic administration, it behooves Republicans to again assemble under the party standard and pledge anew their faith in their party's principles and to organize again to defend the constitutional government handed down to us by our fathers.
"We must make clear to the young men of the country who have been weaned away from sound principles of government by promise of reforms, impossible of accomplishment by more legislation, that patriotism and common sense require them to return to a support of our constitution. Without compromising our principles we must convince and win back former Republicans and we must re-enforce our ranks with constitution loving Democrats."
"We favor every step of progress toward more perfect equality of opportunity and the ridding society of injustice. But we know that all progress worth making is possible with our present form of government and that to sacrifice that which is of the highest value in our governmental structure for undefined and impossible reforms is the wildest folly. We must face the danger with a clear knowledge of what it is."
Even in the moments when it became apparent that Governor Wilson was going to sweep the country President Taft did not forget his philosophy and good humor. Here is a tale of how the president looked at the situation just about that time, as told by a friend:
"We've got to find some comfort in this," the president is reported to have said. "I'll be very glad to ride down Pennsylvania avenue with Governor Wilson. It wouldn't have been so easy if things had been different. But I would have taken the ride just the same."

TURKISH ARMY AGAIN DEFEATED
Completely Crushed in Second Great Battle.
SERBIANS TAKE MONASTIR
Town, With Christian Population, Occupied by Ottoman Army Corps, Surrenders.
Sofia, Nov. 7.—The Turkish army commanded by Nazim Pasha was completely crushed in the great battle of the last two days on the Serrah-Tchorlu line.
According to the semi-official paper Mir the Turks lost in killed and wounded more than double the losses at Lule-Burgas. The Bulgarians are now pursuing the defeated army.
Monastir Surrenders.
London, Nov. 7.—The Turkish stronghold of Monastir surrendered to the Serbian troops, according to a dispatch from Belgrade.
The whole of the Sixth Turkish army corps, commanded by Fethi Pasha, was stationed at Monastir, and many Turkish troops fleeing from other posts in the province had taken refuge there. The dispatch does not say whether or not this great Turkish army surrendered to the invaders.
Monastir has been the scene of many massacres. Half of its population of 40,000 professes the Christian faith.
Monastir is an important town insofar as Americans are concerned, since within its confines are large American missionary institutions and schools. One of the largest American institutions in Turkey is the Girls' school, situated in Monastir. Nearby is the missionary headquarters. In the cities of Monastir and Salonika more than $5,000,000 of American funds is invested for educating the Turks.
The Turkish public is astonished and dumfounded at the repeated Turkish reverses. It is now recognized on all sides that the end has come.
The Mussulman population of the towns along the Dardanelles, although depressed, maintains calm. Some anti-Greek incidents of small importance are reported to have occurred in the outlying villages.
According to a dispatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, the Turkish losses in killed and wounded during the five days of fighting in the vicinity of Lule-Burgas and Bunarhisar are estimated at 25,000 men.
The Bulgarians captured thirty-seven batteries of quick-firing guns and took 2000 prisoners. They also seized four locomotives and 243 railroad cars.
The remnants of the Turkish army have now reached the last ditch in European Turkey.

SOCIALIST VOTE GROWS
Debs, For President, Polled Nearly 800,000 Ballots.
New York, Nov. 7.—Revised returns and estimates made for localities where returns are not complete indicate that the Socialists polled nearly 800,000 votes in the presidential election for their nominee, Eugene V. Debs, against 420,793 given him in 1908.
Gains were made by the Socialists in nearly every state, but the largest were recorded in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin, Maryland, West Virginia, Colorado and Oklahoma.
In New York state the Socialist vote of 1908 was more than doubled, great gains for the party being made in Buffalo, Rochester, Schenectady, New York, Troy and Utica. A gain of 2400 was made over the 1908 returns in Buffalo, a 12,000 gain is indicated for New York city, and 2000 in Rochester, while the vote on Tuesday in Troy, Utica and many of the smaller cities in the state more than doubled that of four years ago.
The most surprising show made by the Socialists in New York was in Schenectady city and county. Complete returns for the city gave Wilson 4134; Taft, 4089; Roosevelt, 2957, and Debs, 2871, while in the gubernatorial fight Charles Edward Russell, Socialist, polled 3041, against 4760 for Sulzer, 3944 for Hedges and 2199 for Oscar Straus. George R. Lunn, Schenectady's Socialist mayor, the party's nominee for congress in the Thirtieth district, made a strong run.
Congressman Victor Berger went down to defeat in Milwaukee against the fusion candidate. The Socialists polled a big vote throughout Wisconsin for Debs. Berger's opponents united to defeat him and succeeded.
In Pennsylvania the Socialists polled about 20,000 of the 110,000 votes cast in Allegheny county.
The Socialist vote cast in Oklahoma was 30,000, an increase of nearly 40 per cent over that of four years ago. An increase of 20 per cent was made in Maryland.

"Red Phil" Davidson Sentenced For Shooting Gang Leader.
New York, Nov. 7.—"Red Phil" Davidson, confessed murderer of "Big Jack" Zelig, the gang leader and gunman, was sentenced by Justice Goff to imprisonment in Sing Sing for not less than thirty years.
"Red Phil" shot Zelig on a trolley car in New York city on Oct. 5, asserting then that the gangster had robbed him of $500, though the district attorney's office believed that Zelig had been put out of the way so that he could not testify against Lieutenant Charles Becker, convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

Two German Airmen Killed.

The men were found dead in the shattered machine.

THE TRAGEDY OF THOMAS HEARNE

"I've no excuse," I began. "It was all my fault, and—"

"Hush! keep quiet."

He stood for a moment listening like a dog at a door.

"If that fool of a warder had not gone back we were done," he whispered. "The guards chased us right into the ruins. While they searched them we slipped down the track. Come along, Craig, all's well."

The convict rose from the heather, where he had lain, and stumbled toward us. He was shaking like a man with the ague, and the sweat was running off his forehead and down his cheeks in narrow streaks.

"Am I safe?" he stuttered, grabbing my arm. "I've money, man, money. You shall have it, I swear you shall have it all. But I won't say a word about it."

Hearne, with a hand on his shoulder. "We have no time to waste, remember."

We wrapped the long coat over his yellow clothes, stuck the wig over his cropped head, and helped him to the front seat. I took my place beside him, Hearne clambered up behind, and our journey began.

The horse was of the old moor breed. He could have bowled us along at a good ten miles an hour if the fog had allowed it; but as it was we rarely exceeded half that speed. It was a miserable time. Craig sat huddled by my side, now cursing me for the delay, now peering back along the road, while he implored us to tell him if it were galloping hoofs that he heard. He was an ill-tempered, petulant man, and I did not waste either politeness or sympathy upon him. It was not until we had passed over some miles of rolling uplands and dropped down a steep descent to a moss-grown bridge, that the fog showed signs of breaking. As we strained up the opposite hill it began to tear away in flying wisps like the smoke of great guns, giving us glimpses of a narrow slope of turf ending in a cliff, at the foot of which an unseen river moaned and chuckled.

"I helped you loyally—you have no complaint against me?" asked old Hearne, tapping me suddenly on the shoulder.

"I could never wish a better comrade," I told him.

"That is how I hope you will always think of me."

He was not a kind of man to talk sentiment, and I glanced back in surprise. There was an expression of peace upon him, such as I have never seen in a human countenance, either before or since. He smiled, and, reaching over, gave my hand a squeeze.

"You have the making of a good fellow in you," he said. "May the fates forget your follies."

We drove on in silence for awhile, and then the old man rose, kneeling upon the cushions of the back seat.

"Here comes the sun, Julius Craig," he said. "The mists are scattering, and the world comes peeping through to welcome you back to freedom. Women and wine and cards—does the old spirit stir within you?"

"And who the devil may you be?" asked the convict, turning upon him.

"Have five years changed me so much? Perhaps my beard is whiter than it was the night you fled with her to the yacht in Cadiz bay."

The convict gave a mingled cry, like a beast in pain, shrinking back, with his face one gray mask of fear.

"Not Mortimer?" he whispered. "It can't be Mortimer. He died."

"You are quite mistaken," said Hearne politely.

It all happened very swiftly—in one long breath or so, it seemed to me. Craig sprang from his seat and ran wildly down the slope; but the old man was not five yards behind him. I believe that the convict had the pace of him, but the cliff turned Craig to the right, and the next moment they had closed, and hung, swaying upon the edge.

The flicker of a knife, a shrill, piping cry, and they were gone.

I was alone in the great silence, save for the faint murmurs of the stream as it fought the rocks below.

It took me ten minutes and more to reach them, for I had to skirt the cliff until a slide of granite boulders gave me a path to the bottom. Craig was dead, the knife had done its work; but the old man was alive, though his grave blue eyes were staring out. He recognized me, and smiled very faintly. I asked his name and he told me it was Julius Craig.

"Is he dead?"

"Yes," I told him.

"I was—manager of a mine—in Spain," he whispered. "My daughter—he took her to his yacht—second-hand was married already—she died in London."

There was no vengeance in his face now; he faltered on as simply as a little child.

"Long search—found he was in prison—came to kill him. I met you—to help him escape seemed a better way. Then he would know why he had to die—if I had shot him over hedge he would—never have understood—sorry for you—had to do my duty—by him."

His head fell back with a long sigh, so that I thought all was over; but presently he rallied again, in the last blind effort at life which even a man with a broken back will make.

"Not a sin, Mary dear," he called. "How can they tell you it was murder when they know—"

He finished his explanation in another world.

That is about all I need tell you. I found the horse grazing by the roadside and drove to Ashburton with no great care whether they caught me or not. Yet I was back in London before they found the bodies.

So ended the story of John Henderson as Inspector Peace told it to me.

"And you?" I asked.

"I suspected that 'Kingsley' had helped in the escape, but I never identified him with Jack Henderson. Who Thomas Hearne might be or why he killed the convict I could never find out. So I failed, but I don't know that I am ashamed of it, all things considered."

"Did Henderson die in the hospital?"

"No; they pulled him round. Some old friends found him a place in some racing stables. He is there now."

"He had broken several sorts of laws," I suggested. "When he recovered didn't you—"

"No, I didn't," said the inspector, firmly. "I let him go free—and without straining my conscience, either."

THE VANISHED MILLIONAIRE

I stood with my back to the fire, smoking and puzzling over it. It was worth all the headlines the newspapers had given it; there was no loophole to the mystery.

Both sides of the Atlantic knew Silas J. Ford. He had established a business reputation in America that had made him a celebrity in England from the day he stepped off the liner. Once in London his syndicates and companies and consolidations had startled the slow-moving British mind. The commercial sky of the United States had been changed to alarm. Other servants were roused to aid in the quest. Finally, a party, provided with lanterns from the stables, commenced to examine the grounds.

Snow had fallen early in the day, covering the great lawn in front of the entrance porch with a soft white blanket, about an inch in thickness. It was the head-groom who struck the trail. Apparently Mr. Ford had walked out of the porch, and so over the drive and across the lawn towards the wall that bounded the public road. This road, which led from Meudon village to the town of Camdon, crossed the front of Meudon hall at a distance of some quarter of a mile.

There was no doubt as to the identity of the footprints, for Silas Ford affected a broad, square-toed boot, easily recognizable from its unusual impression.

They tracked him by their lanterns to the park wall, and there all trace of him disappeared. The wall was of rough stone, easily surmountable by an active man. The snow that covered the road outside had been churned into muddy paste by the traffic of the day; there were no further footprints observable.

The party returned to the house in great bewilderment. The telephone to London brought no explanation, and the following morning Mr. Harbord caught the first train to town to make inquiries. For private reasons his friends did not desire publicity for the affair, and it was not until the late afternoon, when all their investigations had proved fruitless, that they communicated with Scotland Yard. When the papers went to press the whereabouts of the great Mr. Ford still remained a mystery.

In keen curiosity I set off up the stairs to Inspector Peace's room. Perhaps the little detective had later news to give me.

I found him standing with his back to the fire puffing at his cigarette with a plump solemnity. A bag, neatly strapped, lay on the rug at his feet. He nodded a welcome, watching me over his glasses.

"I expected you, Mr. Phillips," he said. "And how do you explain it?"

"A love affair or temporary insanity," I suggested vaguely.

"Surely we can combine those solutions," he smiled. "Anything else?"

"No. I came to ask your opinion."

"So I imagine," said Peace. "And if he has spent two nights on the Hampshire downs, he will be looking for a fire today. You have rather more than your fair share of the rug, Mr. Phillips, if you will excuse my mentioning it."

A man was standing on the steps of the entrance porch when we drove up. As we unrolled ourselves he stepped forward to help us. He was a thin, pale-faced fellow, with fair hair and indeterminate eyes.

"My name is Harbord," he said. "You are Inspector Addington Peace, I believe."

His hand shook as he stretched it out in a tremulous greeting. Plainly the secretary was afraid, visibly and anxiously afraid.

"Mr. Ransom, the manager of Mr. Ford's London office, is here," he continued. "He is waiting to see you in the library."

Matters of Importance to be discussed

JOHN RAYMOND.

E. M. Bender, President.

Kingdom was overshadowed by him and his schemes. The papers were full of praise and blame, of puffs and denunciations. He was a millionaire; he was on the verge of a smash that would paralyze the markets of the world. He was an abstainer, a drunkard, a gambler, a most religious man. He was a confirmed bachelor, a woman hater; his engagement was to be announced shortly. So was the gossip kept rolling with the limelight always centered upon the spot where Silas J. Ford happened to be standing.

And now he had disappeared, vanished, evaporated.

On the night of December 18, a Monday, he had left London for Meudon, the fine old Hampshire mansion that he had rented from Lord Beverly. The two most trusted men in his office accompanied him. Friday morning he had spent with them; but at three o'clock the pair had returned to London, leaving their chief behind. From four to seven he had been shut up with his secretary. It was a hard time for every one, a time verging upon panic, and at such times Silas J. Ford was not an idle man.

At eight o'clock he had dined. His one recreation was music, and after the meal he had played the organ in the picture gallery for an hour. At a quarter past eleven he retired to his bedroom, dismissing Jackson, his body servant, for the night. Three-quarters of an hour later, however, Harbord, his secretary, had been called to the private telephone, for Mr. Ford had brought an extension wire from the neighboring town of Camdon. It was a London message, and so urgent that he decided to wake his chief. There was no answer to his knock, and on entering the room he found that Mr. Ford was not in bed. He was surprised, but in no way suspicious, and started to search the house. He was joined by a footman, and a little later,

"My mind is void of theories," Mr. Phillips, and I shall endeavor to keep it so for the present. If you wish to amuse yourself by discussing possibilities, I would suggest your consideration of the reason why, if he wanted to disappear quietly, he should leave so obvious a track through the snow of his own lawn. For myself, as I am leaving for Camdon via Waterloo station in 23 minutes, I shall hope for more definite data before night."

"Peace," I asked him eagerly, "may I come with you?"

"If you can be ready in time," he said.

It was past two o'clock when we arrived at the old town of Camdon. A carriage met us at the station. Five minutes more and we were clear of the narrow streets and climbing the first bare ridge of the downs. It was a desolate prospect enough—a bare expanse of wind-swept land that rose and fell with the sweeping regularity of the Pacific swell. Here and there a clump of ragged firs showed black against the snow. Under that gentle carpet the crisp turf of the crests and the broad plough lands of the lower ground alike lay hidden. I shivered, drawing my coat more closely about me.

It was half an hour later that we topped a swelling rise and saw the gray towers of the ancient mansion beneath us. In the shelter of the valley by the quiet river, that now lay frozen into silence, the trees had grown into splendid woodlands, circling the hall on the further side. From the broad front the white lawns crept down to the road on which we were driving. Dark masses of shrubberies and the tracery of scattered trees broke their silent levels. The park wall that fenced them from the road stood out like an ink line ruled upon paper.
